

Technology Teaching Philosophy

I believe that art courses have the potential to teach students how to understand the world around them and how to better interact in that world. Art has the ability to give students a voice, the chance to challenge norms, and the ability to gain perspective. With the changing times and the influences of technology on our daily lives, I believe it to be important for my students to be knowledgeable about the technology that is used to manipulate and expose the world to endless different realities. The more my students understand how these realities are constructed the better they can create their own reality instead of simply taking everything for their "face value".
